Missy Parkin Wins PWBA Regional

Looking Forward to This Year’s Ladies Tour

New Port Richey, FL - The 2017 PWBA Tour season opens with a PWBA/PBA doubleheader when Lane Glo Bowl in New Port Richey, Fla., hosts the PBA60 Killer ‘B’ Open and the PWBA Pasco County Florida Open back-to-back April 15-20.

The inaugural Killer ‘B’ Open, for players ages 60 and over, will take place April 15-17 and will be followed by the Pasco County Florida Open April 18-20. Both events will be covered live in their entirety by PBA’s online bowling channel Xtra Frame.

Defending champion Walter Ray Williams Jr. of Orlando, Fla., highlights the list of approximately 150 players ages 50 and over who are entered in the Pasco County Florida Open, which will be the first of 14 tournaments during the 2017 season.

Williams, the PBA Tour’s all-time titles leader with 47 wins, won his 10th career PWBA Tour title in Pasco County last year by defeating fellow PBA Hall of Famer Norm Duke of Clermont, Fla., 245-225, in the title match. The Pasco County Open was part of another milestone chapter in the Hall of Famer’s more than three decade career in which he won his record 100th career overall title in PBA competition (including PBA Tour, PWBA Tour, PBA regional and PWBA regional wins).

He achieved the century mark last December in the Decker Appraisal Services Trios regional tournament in Harrisonburg, Va.

Michael Loera

Rolls His First 300

by Frank Weiler

INDIO — “ALWAYS REMEMBER YOUR FIRST ONE.” That’s what I tell young bowlers who roll their first perfect game. Bowling a 300 game is special and should never be taken for granted. Bowling a 300 game is especially your first, you should never be forgotten. Not everyone is talented enough, lucky enough or fortunate enough to bowl 300, so always remember the circumstances surrounding your first one.

Michael Loera will always remember his first 300. He rolled it on April 22, 2017, at JB Bowling Supply in Indio.

CHICAGO - After an eight-year hiatus, the Professional Bowlers Association is re-viving its made-for-television King of Bowling special event as part of a new Xtra Frame Pay Per View series, with reigning “king” Wes Malott of Pflugerville, Texas, defending his throne during the PBA’s return to Bayside Bowl in Portland, Maine, next week.

The first event in the made-for-Xtra Frame series, which will be available for $2.99 per event, will pit Malott against two of the PBA’s hottest players, 2016 PBA Player of the Year EJ Tackett of Huntington, Ind., and Australia’s Jason Belmonte, who won Player of the Year honors the previous three years, in a three-game total pinfall winner-take-all match. Coverage of the match on Wednesday, April 12, will begin with a pre-game show at 9:30 p.m.

Proceeds from each special pay per view event will determine the prize money paid to the King of Bowling winner. The one-time $2.99 special event fee will apply to all viewers, including current Xtra Frame subscribers. To sign up for any of the special online video streaming events, visit www.xtraframe.tv. The King of Bowling series will continue throughout the season with the winner defending his crown in an upcoming PBA Xtra Frame King of Bowling Pay Per View event to be announced. Details will be announced later.

To recap Malott’s dominant reign in the 2009 series held at the Kegel Training Center in Lake Wales, Fla., the then 32-year-old “Sir Strikes-a-lot” defended his King of Bowling crown five consecutive weeks and became the first bowler in PBA history to bowl two nationally-televised 300 games in defeating Parker Bohn III of Jackson, N.J., 300-223, in the KOB finale. During his run, Malott defeated Chris Barnes, 268-214; Patrick Allen, 258-234; Walter Ray Williams Jr., 258-234; and Rhino Page, 257-233, before closing with his perfect victory over Bohn in the made-for-ESPN2 series.

For perspective, Tackett (the winner of the 2016 PBA World Champion and 2017 Fire-Lake PBA Tournament of Champions) was 16 years old when Malott won his last King of Bowling match. Belmonte (the winner of the 2017 Barbasol PBA Players Championship and USBC Masters) had just won his first PBA title in West Babylon, N.Y., on his way to winning 2008-09 PBA Rookie of the Year honors. While the King of Bowling didn’t count for any titles, Malott went on to win three PBA Tour titles and PBA Player of the Year honors for the 2008-09 season.

Looking Back: Pro Bowling Tournaments
Don’t Get Any Better Than This One
by Fred Eisenhammer

WINNETKA – “I will have the crowd behind me and that will help a lot.”

So said Robin Romeo in a television interview before competing in the $30,000 Canoga Park Classic stepladder finals on Feb. 8, 1989, at Canoga Park Bowl (later to be called Winnetka Bowl).

Romeo was then a Van Nuys resident and had qualified third among the six women who had reached the stepladder finals. She was repeatedly referred to as the “hometown favorite” during SportsChannel America’s brodcast of the year’s first Ladies Professional Bowlers Tour event.

This four-day professional women’s tournament, which was cited last month in the California Bowling News, was memorable for many reasons.

First, it’s a rare event when the San Fernando Valley serves as the site of a pro bowling tournament. This is how special the tournament was: In preparation for the event, Canoga Park Bowl underwent a $500,000 face lift. The bowling house also paid the LBF $10,000 to host the event.

Second, the event was marked by a severe snowstorm that provided an obstacle to bowlers coming down to the Valley from the Santa Clarita and Antelope valleys. Santa Clarita Valley was hit so hard that one spokesman said the area was “basically sealed off” from the three to five inches of snow. Other Los Angeles-area communities, such as Westlake Village, Porter Ranch, Calabasas, Simi Valley and Tarzana, also were hit with up to five inches of snow before it started to melt.

Third, the tournament of 69 entrants lived up to its billing as a classic with Romeo prevailing against stiff competition in dramatic fashion to collect the $5,000 first-place prize.

Here’s how the tournament went:

Match 1 of the stepladder finals: Sixth-seeded Michelle Mullen vs. fifth-seeded Lorrie Nichols. Mullen was a former collegiate bowler of the year but had zero career titles. Nichols, in her 18th year on the tour, had won 13 titles.

Mullen stayed close to Nichols, rolling a five-bagger starting with the third frame. But Nichols opened with four strikes and struck out in the 10th to finish with a 247. Mullen needed a triple in the 10th to win, but missed on her first shot and finished with a 226, losing by 21 pins.

Match 2: Nichols vs. fourth-seeded Lisa Wagner. It was another high-scoring affair with Wagner putting together a five-bagger to finish with a 245. Nichols needed two strikes in the 10th frame to edge Wagner, who won 21 titles, six in 1988. Nichols struck on her first shot but left a solid 10 on her next shot and finished with a 244 – a one-pin loss.

Match 3: Wagner vs. third-seeded Robin Romeo. Romeo, who was recovering from a separated shoulder, didn’t show any ill effects from the injury and was hot from start to finish. Romeo, in her 11th year on the tour and who had won seven titles, strung together seven strikes and finished with a powerful 268. Wagner failed to mark in the third frame and never got an opening from Romeo and finished with a 207.

Match 4: Romeo vs. second-seeded Paula Drake. This was a nail-biter. Romeo bowled well on her home lanes but so did Drake, who was renowned for her accuracy. Romeo, however, asserted herself with a turkey in the seventh-to-ninth frames while Drake spared each frame. Still, Drake nailed two strikes in the 10th frame, forcing Romeo to mark in the 10th. Romeo left the 10 pin on her first shot and easily converted the spare to score a 237-233 victory.

Match 5 (championship match): Romeo vs. top-seeded Rene Fleming. Both bowlers entered a groove, each notching strikes on their first four shots. Fleming, with career earnings of more than $61,000 and known for her power and speed, battled Romeo until the end. Fleming trailed by seven pins entering the 10th frame. She collected a strike and Fleming followed with a strike of her own. Fleming’s second shot left a four-pin washout and speed, battled Romeo until the end. Romeo was in a celebratory mood afterwards. In her post-victory interview, Romeo, who was cheered on during the tournament by sister Tori, raised her fist, looked out at the crowd and exclaimed: “I just want to thank everyone. This one is for you!”

Bayside Bowl also will host a new Xtra Frame Pay-Per-View event, called the “King of Bowling,” that will be an invitational contest between Wes Malott, who won the last King of Bowling made-for-television special event held in 2009, vs. Tackett and Belmonte, the two more recent PBA Players of the Year and the winners of the last four PBA major championships who bowl a simultaneous three-game match with the winner advancing in a new series of XF pay-per-view events. Coverage of the special event, available exclusively on Xtra Frame for a one-time fee of $2.99 (also applies to current XF subscribers), will begin at 7 p.m. ET on Wednesday, April 13.

The L.L. Bean PBA League competition begins with a qualifying round for all teams on April 13 to determine seeding positions for the ESPN-televised Baker format elimination rounds. The April 13 qualifying round will be streamed live on Xtra Frame. The Elias Cup competition will be contested on April 15 and 16, and will air on ESPN on four consecutive Sundays at 1 p.m. ET following the doubles telecast: April 23 and 30, and May 7 and May 14.

While the PBA League finals are being taped for delayed telecast on ESPN, the shows will be live streamed on the ESPNEWS WatchESPN app. All ESPN telecasts also will simultaneously be live streamed on ESPN3/WatchESPN app. All ESPN telecasts also will simultaneously be live streamed on ESPN3/WatchESPN app. All ESPN telecasts also will simultaneously be live streamed on ESPN3/WatchESPN app.

 PORTLAND, Maine - The Professional Bowlers Association will return to Portland April 9-16 for a third consecutive year of competition that promises to be bigger, better and louder than ever.

Significant changes for 2017 include:

● An expanded Bayside Bowl complex, with eight new lanes and a mezzanine over looking the new lanes where five ESPN television shows will be contested, meaning there will be room for twice as many enthusiastic, energetic and boisterous Maine bowling fans compared to previous years.

● New corporate partners: world-famous Maine-based retailer L.L. Bean will sponsor the 2017 L.L. Bean PBA League Elias Cup competition, and the Maine Office of Tourism’s MaineQuarterly.com will sponsor the Mark Roth/Marshall Holman PBA Doubles Championship.

● A bigger field of PBA players, thanks to the expansion of Bayside Bowl which allows it to now host the field of 32 teams in the Roth/Holman PBA Doubles Championship.

● In addition to live ESPN coverage of the Roth/Holman Doubles Championship on Sunday, April 16, PBA fans will be able to watch all rounds of the PBA League finals in real time via live streaming on the ESPN3/WatchESPN apps.

● A new Xtra Frame “King of Bowling” Pay Per View event: the match will pit Wes Malott, who won the last King of Bowling match contested in 2009, against 2016 PBA Player of the Year Jason Belmonte and three-time Player of the Year Jason Johnson.

● “Our goal is to make this event bigger and better every year,” said Justin Alfond, co-owner of Bayside Bowl. “With L.L. Bean as the title sponsor of the PBA League Elias Cup, our partnership with the Maine Office of Tourism, we have great partners to showcase the best of Maine, and we’re planning to add something new every year to build on the excitement.”

“We can’t wait for the PBA to come back,” said Charlie Mitchell, Bayside Bowl’s managing partner. “We’re welcoming the world’s best bowlers, and we already have the most passionate fans in the sport along with incredible sponsors who realize what a big deal this event is for our state.”

Maine may rank as one of the nation’s smallest states in terms of bowling population, but those who love the sport more than make up for it with a modest population with a level of enthusiasm that towers over even the most populous of bowling states.

“The electric atmosphere and enthusiasm at Bayside Bowl breathed new life into the PBA League and has made it the event most looked-forward to of the year for our players,” said PBA CEO and Commissioner Tom Clark. “Moving into the new building will take things to an even higher level of intensity and excitement.”

“Bayside Bowl fans are redefining the fans’ role in the PBA. They are a huge part of our commitment to keep coming back to Portland, this year and for the foreseeable future.”

The combined “Maine event” will take place from April 9-16, beginning with qualifying rounds for the MaineQuarterly.com Roth/Holman Doubles Championship leading into the live stepladder finals on ESPN on April 16 at 1 p.m. ET. The doubles field includes defending champions Anthony Simonsen and Connor Pickford; 2014 and ’15 champs Wes Malott and Norm Duke; PBA Hall of Famers, a slew of PBA Tour title winners, several of the PBA’s most talented future stars, international champions, the all-female team of Liz Johnson and Danielle McEwan and more.

PBA fans will be able to watch the preliminary doubles competition on Xtra Frame, PBA’s subscription-based live streaming bowling channel, April 10, 11 and 12, or track real time releases on pba.com’s Live Scoring feature. For Xtra Frame subscription information and broadcast times, visit pba.com or xtraframe.tv.

Why I Stopped Watching Football

by Dave Williams

I had been a fan of professional football since my father took me to my very first San Francisco 49ers game at Kezar Stadium in the early 1960’s. It was about that same time that I began a lifelong love for the sport and business of bowling.

My first two rolls of a bowling ball were strikes, so a penchant for high scores had been established.

My favorite player on the 49ers was Bob St. Clair, a giant of a man at 6’9” tall. He spent the off season near my childhood home of Sebastopol, California, where he worked for Clover Dairy as a salesman. You see, unlike today’s multi-million dollar football players, St. Clair was raking in only $6,000 a year as one of the best offensive tackles in professional football.

Meanwhile, bowling stars of that era were accumulating six figure incomes from professional events and endorsements. In 1964, pro bowler Don Carter became the first “million dollar athlete” when he signed a $1,000,000 endorsement with Ebonite. Little wonder that I decided to concentrate on those early strike shots that enabled me to one day be known in bowling circles as “Mr. 300.”

But back to St. Clair, who spent his entire career at Kezar Stadium - first in high school (San Francisco Polytechnic - where he never lost a game), then college (University of San Francisco) and finally with the 49ers. The city of San Francisco fittingly renamed the stadium Bob St. Clair Field in 2001.

In 1951 St. Clair was part of USF’s undefeated team that produced three NFL Hall of Famers - St. Clair, Gino Marchetti and Ollie Matson. They were invited to play in the Orange Bowl that year but declined when bowl officials tried to exclude the teams two black players, Burl Toler and Matson.

The team was reportedly insulted by the request, but rather than make a statement against the United States in protest, they put principle ahead of fame and said they would rather sit out the Orange Bowl than stand for such racism.

“We told them to go to hell,” St. Clair once told an interviewer.

After St. Clair retired, quarterback John Brodie became my 49er favorite. He had the great statistics but never won the big game. He was also the first “white” athlete to be elected to the African-American Sports Hall of Fame. Like St. Clair before him, Brodie must have found a way to overcome racism with his actions, and not just taking a knee during the National Anthem.

By now my favorite bowler was Dick Weber, perhaps the greatest individual representative for any sport in history. Our relationship was cemented many years later when I became Director of Marketing for AMF, and utilized Weber many times in a competition I labeled the “I Beat Dick Weber… Once!” contest.

I really stepped back from football after the “Montana Era,” which featured such 49er superstars as Joe Montana, Jerry Rice, Ronnie Lott, et al, but would always watch from New Jersey whenever the 49ers were on a nationally televised event, even though they struggled.

And now football has entered a dark period. The methods of communication by today’s professional football players do not represent the proper marketing strategy. Unlike pro bowlers, the football players have been recompensed beyond comprehension. They need a good dose of reality.

And what a fabulous moment for bowling to step forward. I see a resurgence in bowling everyday when surrounded by young bowlers in after school bowling programs throughout New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

White Hutchinson Leisure and Learning Group recently completed a socioeconomic lifestyle analysis of bowlers (“What’s Happening to Bowling?”) and found the highest participation rate is among children.

According to the study, children in the 5 to 14 age group top the participation rate at close to 34 percent. The next highest participation rate is with young adults ages 21 to 34. Here’s the really good news: bowlers under age 35 represented close to two-thirds of all keglers.

There is hope for the future of bowling. Organized bowling is a bit more difficult, but with all of the young children involved in our sport today, it’s just a matter of building the proper “bowling trap” like the entrepreneurs of the 1960’s.

And the pro bowlers of today need to keep their wits about them, and not fall into the holier than thou attitude of multi-million dollar athletes. Having been there… I don’t think that will happen to professional bowlers.

300 because of family. He loves bowling and appreciates everything that’s great about our sport. The greatest thing about bowling is family. Bowling is a family affair and Michael’s family is always there for him. Mom and dad were a part of Michael’s first 300 and he will always remember that.

Most bowlers never roll a perfect 300 game or roll any sort of honor score. Most bowlers never average 200 or bowl 700. Some old timers, like myself, have rolled perfect games but had to wait a lifetime to do so. Michael Loera isn’t like most bowlers or old timers like me. He wasn’t about to wait a lifetime to bowl 300. He has rolled a 300 and a 700. He averages 200 and is just sixteen years old!

MICHAEL LOERA JUST ROLLED HIS FIRST 300 and I predict that it is the first of many to come. Michael possesses the skill, the poise and the maturity necessary to become a great bowler, maybe even a professional bowler. Time will tell.

Congratulations to Michael and the whole Loera family. I look forward to hearing and writing about Michael’s future successes on the lanes.

Bowling Beyond 200
Measure of a Good Bowler
by John Baker

What is the measure of a good bowler?
Is it weekly honor scores or numerous league championships or a handful of cash?
Many of these things do make for a good bowler but what if that bowler was an JACKASS, one of those guys or gals that no one wants to be around. You all have one in your local center, the one obnoxious loudmouth that for some reason can’t miss. Bowls an occasional tournament and wins that all while singing his own praise.
While you are shooting well but just can’t seem to get ahead of this guy. It is frustrating and you remember that “EVERY DOG HAS HIS DAY” but you wonder WHEN?
The measure of a good bowler and for that matter a good person is one in the same, a bowler that bowls well and passes on information to others is a good bowler. One that bowls just for the fun of the game and the friendly competition IS a good bowler as well. While honor scores and wins are a measure of how good someone bowls it does not necessarily make one a good bowler. Those who are in it for the love of the game and not necessarily for wins are good bowlers.
The loudmouth, arrogant few will see Karma some day, just be the best bowler you can be and continue to pass on Bowling and be a GOOD BOWLER. The health of bowling in the future is relying on you.

1969 - PART 1

WEST VALLEY BOWL in Canoga Park hosted a PBA stop. 128 top pros competed.

- Look for me at WEST VALLEY BOWL I got $1.99 for breakfast and 3 games. Got yours?
- Well, well. Look who won the 10 gamer at WEST PICO BOWL, FRANK BELLINDER. $110.00 richer.
- What was the miracle answer to problems like: sticky approaches, yellow-crayon, rain, static electricity, wet floors, gum, and candy? "Smoothiehead Teflon Bowling Shoe Soap" prevented a lot of accidents and injuries.
- HOLIDAY BOWL welcomed TOSHI KINOJU to lead the masses - - - - straight to the restaurant after bowling. What a menu! What a leader!
- Guys get left out of the Western All-Stars! (I have wild animals living in my house! What a character. I remember a squirrel in his kitchen sink.
- In 1969 HERB ROTH wrote a scathing letter to bowlers. Summary of the letter. "If bowlers don't bowl summer leagues, centers will have to close. So bowl!!!
- Were there any "real" bowlers in So. California that did not bowl "Grant Singles"? "Nasty Washington Singles", "City Tournament", "State Tournament", "Palm Springs Singles"???
- JOYCE WALTZ was half owner of KIRKWOOD BOWL. She gave up a stage career to manage the center. Did Joyce and Joe ever act together?
- BOBBIE NORTH and FRED RICCIULLI were named "Bowlers of the Year" by the writers.
- FREEWAY LANES in Selma offered a 1969 Mustang Fastback First Place in their "Rain Singers Classic"
- SAN MARCOS LANES was in Santa Barbara. Huh?
- JAVA LANES under the leadership of MILT STANFORD decided to give a Singles Tournament a try. BIG MISTAKE! MILT was not a bowler, instructor, co-ordinator, manager or friend of the bowlers. He wore his suits well, talked a good game and loved to take "sauna baths" in Sweden-right Rich!?
- LEE TAYLOR of San Diego was runner-up to Fresno's BILL BUNETTE in PPCB at CEDAR LANES. Other cashers: JAN KENNEDY, BOBBY KNIPPLE, BUTCH SOPER, JAY ROBINSON, BOB KENNICUTT, NORM MYERS, E.G. MOCX and LA MAR KECX.
- ED TALASY couldn't decide whether to go fishing or go bowling. ED took out his golf glove and went to Palm Springs. Using his glove to avoid blistering, he rolled the highest score of the week.
- Identical female twins rolled identical scores in the South Dakota State Tournament. 190-172-159. Each had 10 strikes and 15 spares.
- A letter to the editor suggested a tournament that sounded crazy. Try this: Most games in 9 hours. No sitting down. Only 1 minute break and any papers over 140 count. 300 games cash. All scratch. Most pins down wins. Didn't have a taker!
