Winnetka – Six years ago, Mike Hahn turned in the game of his life by stringing 11 strikes after an opening spare to finish with an ob-so-close-to-a-perfect-game 296. At least that was the game of his life – until last Tuesday night.

That’s when the 61-year-old right-hander from Reseda blasted a 300 in the second game of a scintillating 720 series (226-300-194) during league play at Winnetka Bowl. It also marked Hahn’s first 700 series.

“When he got his third strike, I told him he was going to bowl a 300 game,” said Ellie Koops, a member of Hahn’s opposing team that night. “He said, ‘I’ve been close, but it’s never happened.’ Now it actually happened. I wished it on him.”

Hahn finished his perfecto with a no-doubt-about-it rocket strike in the pocket before being mobbed by a 50-person throng that arrived at Winnetka before the game was over. The enthusiastic throng included Hahn’s wife, is another formidable bowler who blistered a 267 the previous season.

Hahn tacked on a strike in the first frame of his third game to wind up with a streak of 17 strikes, which included strikes in the final four frames of his first game. “In the second game, he was in a zone,” Curry said.

Coincidentally, Curry has bowled two perfect games and both came on the same pair of lanes (23 and 24) as Hahn’s perfec-

“Just before the split, I knew I had to bowl well,” Hahn said. “When you bowl against the Stines, you push them to a higher level. I knew I had to keep up with the Stines.”

Bet you thought it was over, and so did I, until I started reminiscing about the many acquaintances that I made during my time at American Recreation Centers (ARC) and the Mels Bowl properties.

One of those individuals was Nadine DiLeo, whom I first met in 1989, when she was serving as the Food and Beverage Manager at Mels Southshore Bowl in Alameda, California.

She had come to California from Brooklyn, New York, to attend college, and called upon her Aunt Annabelle Kashatus, an employee of Mels, to see about a part time job.

Nadine advanced quickly at Mels under the tutelage of Jeanine McMillan, the General Manager of Mels, and one of the best in the ARC system at mentoring potential new management candidates.

Beginning as a weekend employee and part time bookkeeper, Nadine showed tremendous skills and was promoted to Food and Beverage Manager when Beverly O’Connor advanced to General Manager at another famous San Francisco Bay Area center, the high scoring Golden Gate Lanes in El Cerrito, California.

Along with attending one of the most demanding universities in the nation and acting as Food and Beverage Manager at Mels, Nadine was also married with a one year old child!

Upon graduation from the university, Nadine left ARC in 1991 and returned to Brooklyn, eventually settling in Piscataway, New Jersey. A friend knowing of her bowling background, recommended that she apply for the management position at Stelton Bowling Lanes in Piscataway.

Nadine was immediately hired and in 1995 began a management relationship with Stelton Investors LLC that lasted until 2011. It was during those years that I had a chance encounter with Nadine as I was preparing to board a plane headed back to California to visit my parents.

We shared memories of ARC and Mels Southshore Bowl, and how curious it was that both of us had surfaced in the bowling business, but on the opposite end of the spectrum.

Not long after that fateful airport meeting, I left Nationwide Bowling Corporation to form my own company, 300 Bowling Creations LLC, in Edison, New Jersey. Nadine was one of the first proprietors that I called upon to offer marketing support, and my relationship with Stelton Bowling Lanes continues to this day.

In 2011, Nadine decided to try something different and opened a Yo’ Fresh Yogurt Shop in South Plainfield, New Jersey. She called upon me to assist with her marketing efforts, and I soon learned that selling yogurt is not much different than selling bowling.

But yogurt wasn’t her thing, and by 2016 Nadine was back in the bowling business with John Fatigati at their Parkway Lanes facility in Elmhurst Park, New Jersey, a bowling center once owned by Hall of Fame bowler Mark Roth.

John is the United States Representative for Switch Bowling Equipment and a third generation bowling proprietor, operating most days out of his main location, Jersey Lanes, in Linden, New Jersey.

Joe and Nadine make quite a team as they also serve the bowling proprietors in the state of New Jersey; John as President, and Nadine as Executive Director.

While Nadine is relaxing she has found time to raise seven children (three biological) and three grandchildren.
Nadine says that all of her kids have worked in the bowling business while growing up, with her youngest son Vinny still involved in web development for a number of bowling centers at “Get Webzy.”

Yet another Mels Bowl connection of mine is with Joe Kashatus, who is now the General Manager of Stelton Bowling Lanes. Joe, the son of the aforementioned Annabelle, probably doesn’t remember our initial meeting when he was run-ing around Mels Bowl as a young toddler.

Today he manages a most unique bowling center with a fascinating history. Stelton Lanes opened as the 38 lane Brookside Lanes, with a giant bar featuring the likes of Twisted Sister (their first paid appearance was reportedly at Stelton Lanes) and Frank Zappa.

A decade went on and lifestyles changed, Brookside Lanes removed 12 lanes and the giant bar area overlooking the lanes, to make room for a strip mall at the front of the property that still includes a Quick Stop Convenience Store, Food Architects Catering, Crown Fried Chicken, a bakery, deli and bagel shop, a nail salon and the upscale Al Dente Restaurant.

The remaining 26 lanes now known as Stelton Lanes feature a more manageable bar/lounge area, snack bar, pro shop and two attractive “community rooms” for birthday parties and corporate events.

Unlike most bowling centers today, we’ve scaled down our bar operation and focused more on league bowling,” states Kashatus. “We are in a unique position between an AMF and a Brunswick center, that have both converted to more of a club atmosphere.

The result has been an increase of seven new leagues over the past two years, as well as individual bowlers, and a number of new summer camp programs. “We miss the corporate parties,” says Joe, “but the league business is much more predictable and provides a steady flow of revenue and profit.”

“I remember my formative years at Mels Southshore Bowl,” says Kashatus. “I was a member of their youth programs from ages 5 to 12, and every year we would have bake sales, rummage sales and fundraisers, resulting in a trip to Disneyland for all the kids at the end of the season.”

Joe dreams of having that happen at Stelton Lanes, with a trip to Disney World in Florida at season’s end. He’s placed a lot of focus on youth programs which fill most weekday afternoons, Saturday mornings and Sunday afternoons. He’s most proud of the Sunday Adult-Youth program, patterned after the one he bowled in at Mels Bowl, which has grown to 18 teams in just the past two years.

Nadine got Joe started in the bowling business as a Birthday Party Host at the age of 14. He climbed the ladder at Stelton Lanes from Party Host to Snack Bar Attendant, then Desk Person, Assistant Manager at age 20, and finally the General Manager at age 28.

Joe, now 34, remembers being at Mels Southshore Bowl when the Loma Prieta Earthquake struck “on October 17th, 1989, at 5:04PM,” says Kashatus. “It measured 6.9 on the Richter Scale and accounted for 63 deaths.”

As a result of that experience, Joe has a very interesting philosophy of life: “We are all just one decision away from an entirely different life.”

Both Nadine and Joe have decided to stick with bowling and continue the tradition that started with the “Why I Stopped Watching Football” column, first with memories of the San Francisco 49ers and professional bowler Dick Weber (April 13th edition), followed by the Mels Drive-In connection (June 8th edition) and finally the Mels Bowl phenomenon (July What’s next? There’s rumors that a fourth trilogy of Star Wars films will be coming after Episode IX, so stay tuned.

Paraphrasing what Princess Leia once said, “Somebody has to save (bowling).”

WINNETKA – For Nancy Milner, the trend was her friend at the “Guys and Dolls” league summer awards banquet at Winnetka Bowl.

“They called me up for one award,” remembered Nancy, “and I think it was for ‘Most Improved.’ Everyone high-fived me and as soon as I sat down, they just kept calling me again . . . and again . . . and again. I was shocked. I was just there to support everyone else who was there.”

Nancy was honored with four individual awards that night as she completed her first full year in league bowling.

In addition to “Most Improved,” Nancy posted the league’s top women’s handicap series of 758 (with a 509 scratch) and won United States Bowling Congress patches for rolling a 180 game and a 500 series.

“I wasn’t expecting anything, trust me,” said Nancy, laughing. “This made it all worthwhile.”

A couple of weeks later, Nancy rewarded herself “for winning all the awards.” She went on Amazon.com and bought a snazzy, psychedelic bowling ball for $99. She got the ball drilled at Winnetka Bowl on a recent Saturday afternoon and hit her average of 135 with her new ball in her first practice later that day. In league play the following Tuesday, she found her stride and rhythm even more and posted higher scores.

“She was very happy with her ball and that’s good,” said Tom Martino, who practiced with Nancy. “She shined on the lanes and so did her ball.”

Nancy, a 54-year-old North Hollywood resident, is absolutely thrilled with her new ball – so much so that she went on the Internet to compare it with her previous one.

The old ball, Nancy said, “was more polyester, more plastic.”

The new one is “more polyurethane. I think I got a good ball. I’m so excited about it. Once I break it in, I think I’ll be OK with it.”

After her memorable summer season, Nancy is holding on to a modest objective. She wants to roll a 200.

“If I get a 190, I’m sure I can push it a little farther,” she said.

Most important, Nancy says, “I just want to have fun. I bowl with a great bunch of people.”

PBA Unveils Library of 16 New Lane Oiling Patterns for GoBowling! PBA Tour’s 60th Anniversary Season

New Dragon, Chris Paul patterns added to library of challenges that will test players’ skills

CHICAGO – The Professional Bowlers Association has announced plans to introduce a newly-revamped library of 16 different lane oiling patterns for the GoBowling! PBA Tour’s 60th anniversary season, creating a wide variety of challenges to test player skills at the highest level.

The lane maintenance program, pioneered by the PBA more than 40 years ago, has been reviewed in depth and modified to take into account current technology, PBA Deputy Commissioner Kirk von Krueger said in announcing the new patterns.

Several of the revised patterns will make their debuts during the GEICO PBA World Series of Bowling IX, presented by Eldorado Reno Properties, in Reno, Nev., Nov. 7-19. WSOB IX is collectively the opening event of the 2017-18 GoBowling! PBA Tour schedule.

“The new library of lane oiling patterns will include eight animal pattern lane conditions and seven ‘legends’ patterns, three of which will be used as major championship patterns, plus the Chris Paul pattern,” von Krueger added. “Each pattern has specific characteristics including the distance oil is applied down the lane, how it is applied across the lane and the volume of oil applied to each lane.”

Two new named patterns will debut in 2018. The “Dragon” is a 45-foot pattern in the animal pattern library that figures to provide a high level of difficulty for PBA players. And for the first time, the PBA will have an official “house shot” design named in honor of the PBA’s long-time celebrity bowling partner, Chris Paul, that is likely to become the PBA’s highest-scoring pattern.

The lane oiling patterns were designed by PBA Head of Lane Maintenance Sean Parry with the assistance of Brunswick, PBA’s Official Lane Maintenance partner. The oiling patterns will be used exclusively throughout the GoBowling! PBA Tour, PBA50 Tour and PBA Regional program’s 2018 seasons. Illustrations of the 16 revamped oiling patterns along with more detailed information can be found on pba.com under the Lanes and Equipment tab. Each pattern’s name will be followed by a number indicating the length of the pattern in feet as it will be applied on a 60-foot lane.

The new Cheetah 33, Chameleon 39, Scorpion 42, Shark 45 and Earl Anthony 42 patterns will debut at the GEICO PBA World Series of Bowling IX presented by Eldorado Reno Properties in Reno in November. The Go Bowling! PBA Tour’s 2018 Big February events will feature the Don Johnson 40 pattern at the PBA Tournament of Champions in Akron; the Carmen Salvino 44 at the Barbasol PBA Players Championship in Columbus, Ohio, and the Dick Weber 45 at the Go Bowling! PBA 60th Anniversary Classic in Indianapolis. The Mark Roth 42 will be used for the Roth/Holman PBA Doubles Championship in Columbus and for the PBA League competition in Portland, Maine.

In addition to the new Dragon 45, the oil pattern library also will include the Wolf 33, Viper 36, Bear 39 and Johnny Petraglia 36 patterns. The Badger 52 will be removed temporarily from the rotation. Plans for the use of these patterns will be announced later.

“For decades, the PBA lane maintenance program has helped define the greatest players in the sport of bowling,” said PBA CEO and Commissioner Tom Clark. “This revised menu of oil patterns and the strategy of their release and implementation is in line with our core values, including integrity, complete transparency and recognizing both challenges and opportunities advanced technology presents. Most of all, we are proud of these diverse conditions that will demand a combination of player skills.

“Along with the distinct characteristics of the bowling centers and lane beds where the PBA conducts competition, these patterns will be a platform for champions while entertaining and educating fans.”

In addition to providing physical definitions of oiling patterns, the PBA uses visible blue oil on most telecasts, allowing fans to see the oil pattern and how the pattern changed during competition, providing another layer of education to the sport’s challenges.

“The PBA recognizes that every oiling pattern will present a different challenge depending upon the type of lane surface, weather conditions, the viscosity of lane conditioning oil and other factors,” von Krueger said. “Every condition is also subject to change due to bowling ball traffic during competition which moves the oil around.

“But defining the physical aspects of each pattern is a valuable tool for players, tournament hosts and fans. Solving those characteristics is the challenge that makes bowling such a great sport.”

THE BOWLING NEWS HAD SPECIAL COLUMNS THAT LISTED BOWLERS: FIRST

TRUE OR FALSE? BARRY ASHER was an “extra” on the Lassie T.V. Show? Can we find the 700 honor roll? All in So. California.

EX BOWLING NEWS OWNER Jess Dudley bought PORTERVILLE LANES and was running the ‘Paul Bunyan Singles Classic.’ In March these squad organizers filled the lanes (old friends of Jesse) WESTERN COLUMBIA, JIM MORRIS, BOBIE NORTH, NICK MANCINI, ART GODDARD and RUSS JOHNSTON. Dan Sweeney (LA MIRADA BOWL) was BOWLING ON LANES 3 & 4 IN FRONT OF THE LOST AND FOUND CLOSET. The lock was broken and he decided to fix it while he was bowling. You guessed it! He locked himself in and they had to break the door down to get him out.

JONI McKENZIE made the front page 3 weeks in a row. Picture and pin count was great. 15,000 men bowed the State Tournament in Stockton. State tournaments are still being rolled in Stockton.

ROBBY ROBINSON SPONSORED Jack Andolina when he gave the PBA Tour a try. AL TRIPP opened a Pro Shop in ENCINO BOWL.

WELL, WELL. Dick Marquis was the head honcho at EASTLAND BOWL. He jumped five times in six years.

Herzog Insurance won all five games from J.A.T. in convincing fashion, taking total by over 300 pins. Gary Duran was the top scorer, posting a 265-236-233/734 set. Chris Heffer was not far back, adding a 235/750 series. JT Yano was subbing for J.A.T. and led the team with 237/746.

The Professional Approach matched up against Don Julio Tequila on the next pair. The match was close throughout, as the Pro Approach took the first two games but held only a 48-pin lead for sides. Don Julio came back to win the final game, and led by 63 pins in total.

Mike Wright and Eric Espinoza were the top scorers for their teams, leading the way for DV8, posting a 257/761 series. Mike Wright took the first sidepot with a 247/697 set. Don Julio Tequila was led by Mike Jennings 660 and had a big lead for totals heading into the third game.
